When to Wonder: Picky Eating App Privacy Policy

NYU Langone Health is committed to protecting the privacy and confidentiality of your health information. We are asking for your permission (authorization) to use and share your health information with others in connection with this study using the When to Wonder: Picky Eating app.

You have the right not to give us this permission; however, you will then not be able to participate in this study or use the When to Wonder: Picky Eating app.

Your treatment outside of this study, payment for your health care, and your health care benefits will not be affected even if you do not authorize the use and sharing of your information for this study.

What information may be used or shared with others in connection with this study?

All information in your research record for this study may be used and shared in connection with this research.

Why is my information being used?

Your de-identified information will be used by the research team and others involved in the study to conduct and oversee the study.

Who may use and share information in connection with this study?

The following individuals may use, share, or receive your information for this research study:

- The research team, including the Principal Investigator, study coordinators, and personnel responsible for the support or oversight of the study
- Governmental agencies responsible for research oversight (e.g., the Food and Drug Administration or FDA).
- Other study sites involved in the research

How long may my information be used or shared?

Your permission to use or share your personal health information for this study will never expire unless you withdraw it. Simple deletion of the When to Wonder app is not the same as withdrawing from the study. To withdraw from the study you must follow the steps outlined below.

Can I change my mind and withdraw permission to use or share my information?

Yes, you may withdraw or take back your permission to use and share your health information at any time for this research study. If you withdraw your permission, we will not be able to take back information that has already been used or shared with others. To withdraw your permission, send a written notice to the principal investigator of this study: Dr. Helen Egger, at One Park Avenue, 7th Floor, New York, NY 10016. Or send an email through the "Contact Us" button in the app. Simple deletion of the When to Wonder app is not the same as withdrawing from the study. If you withdraw your permission, you will not be able to stay in this study.

Optional permission for future use

NYULMC would also like to store, use, and share your health information from this study in research databases or registries for future research conducted by NYULMC or its research partners.

NYULMC would also like permission to contact you in the future with information about additional studies for which you and your family may be eligible.

NYULMC will continue to protect the confidentiality and privacy of this information as required by law and our institutional policies. If you give this additional permission, you will continue to have the rights described in this form. You have the right to take back these additional permissions at any time.

How does the NYU Langone Health IRB protect me?

The Institutional Review Board (IRB) reviews all human research studies—including this study. The IRB follows federal government rules and guidelines designed to protect the rights and welfare of the people taking part in research studies. The IRB also reviews research to make sure the risks for all studies are as small as possible. NYU School of Medicine's IRB office number is 212-263-4110. NYU School of Medicine's IRB is made up of doctors, nurses, non-scientists, and people from the community.

How can I get more information about the study?

If you have questions, concerns, or complaints regarding your participation in this research study, or if you have any questions about your rights as a research subject, please call the principal investigator at 646-754-5279.

This privacy policy is effective as of November 21, 2018.
