COURSE DESCRIPTION

The diagnosis and management of many urologic diseases have been greatly influenced by recent pharmacological, surgical and technological advances. One of the greatest challenges of the practicing urologist is to stay abreast with the many dynamic changes in this field. An internationally acclaimed faculty has been assembled to provide this update, with presentations on topics such as Prostate Cancer, Benign Prostatic Hyperplasia, Female Sexual Dysfunction, Infertility, Reconstructive Surgery, Voiding Dysfunction, and Endourology. During the plenary sessions, the registrants will have the opportunity to participate in question and answer sessions. In addition, an emphasis on case presentations with faculty participation will enhance the practical value of the course.

STATEMENT OF NEED

There have been many recent advances in the management of both non-muscle invasive bladder cancer as well as muscle invasive and metastatic bladder cancer. Urologists should be up to date on the latest advances and treatment recommendations for the various stages of bladder cancer.

Reconstructive urologists treat conditions such as urethral strictures, ureteral obstruction, buried penis, and complications of transgender surgery. General urologists who care for these conditions need to be updated on relevant advances in diagnostic modalities and treatment.

Many women who have pelvic organ prolapse do not have symptoms. In some cases the symptoms do prolapse. Further studies depend on the symptoms, stage of prolapse, and treatment plan.

Endourology is a rapidly changing field. Kidney stones affect over 10% of the population and up to 50% of stone formers will suffer a recurrence. Urologists need to be updated on new guidelines which were recently published by the AUA on the surgical and medical management of kidney stones. There are various imaging modalities available to diagnose kidney stones and to follow patients after treatment. CT is the gold standard but even at low doses, it exposes patients to radiation; Urologists need to be informed about the benefits and potential pitfalls of ultrasound and when it may be preferable to CT or KUB.

Ureteropelvic junction obstruction in the adult can present with pain or incidentally; in some cases repair is indicated to relieve symptoms or prevent a decline in renal function but in other cases, a conservative approach is warranted.

Urologists in general are not familiar with the various energy sources available for ablating prostate cancer and selection of candidates for focal ablation. There is new information suggesting that a group of PSA markers can improve sensitivity of PSA screening of prostate cancer.
