Molecular Control of Early Head Mesoderm Development

Cardiac and craniofacial malformations are the two most common categories of birth defects. The goal of this project will be to use in situ hybridization and immunostaining to describe early cardiac and cranial mesoderm patterning in wild type and mutant zebrafish.

Holger Knaut, PhD